

Okay so like, I need this thing, right? Like an app or a site — whatever works best, I don't really care — I just wanna keep tabs on my stock. Like what's coming in, what's going out, and you know, maybe like money too?

Got it — so you'd like an app to track your inventory and finances. Can you tell me more about your stock — is this physical inventory?

Yeah, yeah. Like, I sell phone accessories mostly. Cables, cases, you know, screen thingies. And sometimes I just write stuff down on paper—

Sorry to interrupt — are you both ready to order?

Oh! Uh yeah — can I get the... uh, iced caramel thing? No, wait... actually, hot. And oat milk, not that other fake stuff.

Just a flat white, please. Thanks.

Got it. I'll be back in a few minutes.

Where was I? Oh right! So yeah, I forget what I sold online. Need to track that. It all gets mixed up.

So you're selling both online and offline. Do you want the app to sync with your online shop?

Mmm... not yet. Just something where I can enter stuff fast. Like, "sold 5 cables", done. And if I'm running low, it should go "hey, restock!" or something. Maybe a buzz. You know what I mean?

Yes, low-stock alerts. And for finances — you'd like to record income and expenses?

Exactly! And like a graph that shows if I'm broke or not. Like boom, big red line = bad. Green = good. Super simple.

Got it. Visual profit tracking. Would you want to enter expenses manually, or should it connect to your bank?

Let's stick with manual for now. Banks and I are still working on trust. Oh, and make sure I can use this on my phone. But also laptop. And also can I print stuff? Like if I need to give my cousin the numbers.

Yes, mobile-friendly with desktop support and PDF or Excel exports.

Awesome. Future idea — barcode scanner. Like pew! It knows the item. But later. Not now. Just put that in the maybe pile.

Noted. So just to recap: inventory tracking, sales and expense entries, profit reports with visual summaries, stock alerts, exports, and clean but not boring design.

YES. Make it fun. Like, no grey screens with tiny text. I hate that. I want to enjoy using it, even if I'm broke.

Here you go — caramel oat latte for you, flat white for you. Let me know if you need anything else!

Perfect timing. Now — based on everything you've said — it sounds like this would really help you stay on top of your business, especially before things get hectic. How would you feel about having the first version ready in, say, six months? Maybe we aim for a launch just before the Christmas holidays — that way, you're up and running for the busiest part of the year?

Oooh, that would be perfect. Imagine: no paper, no chaos — just pew! Profits.

One app, coming right up.
